Silk Worm Production Training Workshop:

Silk worm production took center stage at Rawalakot University of Poonch Rawalakot on 11 November, 2022, as the institution organized a dynamic and informative workshop. This event brought together experts, researchers, and enthusiasts to explore and discuss the intricacies of sericulture and the cultivation of silk-producing silkworms. Participants were treated to practical insights into the entire life cycle of silkworms, from rearing and feeding to cocoon harvesting and silk extraction. The workshop not only enriched the knowledge base of attendees but also fostered a sense of collaboration and innovation in the pursuit of sustainable and lucrative silk production in the region. UPR's initiative underscores its commitment to promoting ago-based industries and empowering local communities through skill development and agricultural advancements.
